

The Family Chronicles of the Crazy Bus Kids

A lot has happened since last year. We moved from Idaho to Arizona so that I, Katrina, could complete my student teaching and earn my Bachelor's Degree. That was finished in December. Then I got a job working at a junior high school working with autistic seventh graders. Kurtis found two part time jobs, one at Wendy's, and one at Dollar Tree. Well that brings us up to date on the major areas of our life. Now let's get to the fun stuff. (This is where the photo gallery starts.)

On May 1st, Kurtis (and Kiel's) B-day, we picked up my friend Twilight and took a trip down to the Temple Open House for the Gilla Valley Temple in Safford, Az.

Later in May, over Mother's Day Weekend, we flew to Vermont to Surprise Kurtis' Mother and see her Graduate from college with her Bachelor's In Elementary Education. Don't worry, this isn't the plane we flew in. This is a model hanging up in the Phoenix Sky Harbor Airport.

Here are a couple of pictures from Mom Moser's graduation. She's all grown up now. 😊

Here is a picture of most of the Moser family Who came to Mom’s graduation. Some are missing because they had not arrived by the time this picture was taken. As you can tell, I had a little fun with this picture in Photoshop, so don’t look too closely at it.

Here is a picture of our very cute Niece, Elise, sitting and examining Her nails like a grown up girl while she Waits for the festivities to begin. AHH!!!

After the graduation we all went to The LDS church building and had a potluck in honor of Mother Moser. While we were there, we had the special honor of being visited by some Super stars. ☺

The night before Mom’s graduation was Charisse’s Prom. Here is a picture with E.J., Ken, Charisse, Kurtis, and I. As you can see, Kurtis takes his “Big brother-the PROTECTOR” job very seriously.

Here is Charisse practicing waltzing with Randal in the back beep-bopping the music out for her. 'Cuz, you know, you gotta be in with the times. Well, that's is what it looks like is going on.

Here are a couple of pictures of the Magnificent Moser Families!

We also took a trip to the Eco Museum. Here Kurtis is telling us all about Dad Moser's new Weather Channel.

Here is Dad Moser using his Mad invisibility powers to gain The attention of his viewers. His Broadcast was a hit! He is now super famous. Here is proof..... Look at the following pictures and see if you can tell who the extremely hard to book guests on his show are.

We were even fortunate enough to get a Tour of the "Behind the Scenes" of Dad's show And meet some of the stars. (Kurtis' sister and Brother-in-law).

We did many more things on our terrific trip to Vermont, but in an effort to not bore the readers of these chronicles, we will move on to more present-day stories and adventures.

When we got back from Vermont Kurtis had the rear opportunity to work with the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter day Saints' audio/visual crew working on filming the Gilla Valley Temple celebration and dedication. The following are a few of the pictures for these events.

The Jib Kurtis helped operate and keep Safe from the crowd.

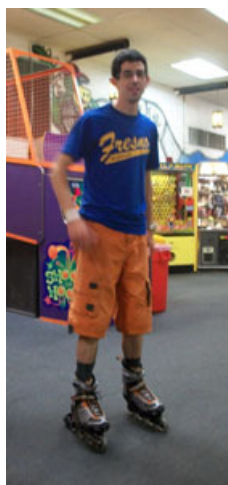

Here is my little brother, Jakey, who is Quite a bit taller than me, performing In the celebration. GO JAKEY!!!

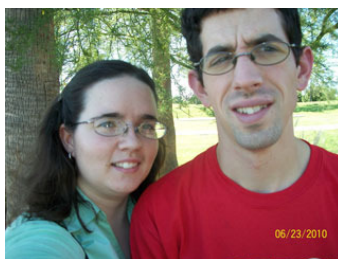

You can't see him very well, but this is President Thomas S. Monson. He Is the Lord's Prophet in these days.

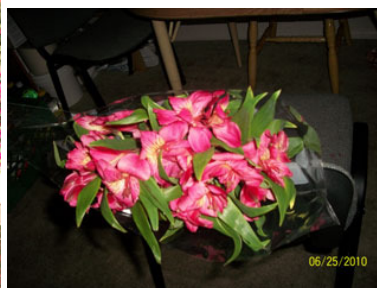

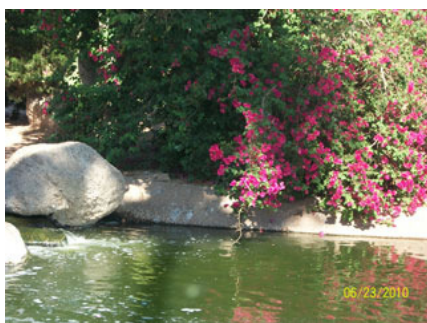

The rest of these chronicles will be covering some of the very awesome dates we have gone on together lately. We are putting these in the chronicles because they either have fun pictures to go with them or “utterly” hilarious stories.

The first date to be chronicled is when we went skating. I just like these pictures. Kurtis is really a pretty good skater...way better than his wife. We had fun and there were a few people there who were amazing skaters and did a few tricks. (The only trick I did was not falling down going at super slow speeds. ☺)

A couple of weeks later Kurtis and I went on a date to one of the nature parks in Gilbert Az. The next couple of pictures were taken there.

One day, my aunt Polly, cousins Rebecca and Shawn, and brother Jacob came to visit and while they were here we decided to stop at Ross. As you can see, Kurtis found an outfit all his style, except the shoes. We did find some nice pink flip flops later on but he didn't seem to like them. ☺ ☺

Kurtis bought these for me one day just because. Isn't he wonderful!

The pictures below are from our most recent date. Kurtis found out that this last Friday was cow appreciation day at Chick Falai? To celebrate, they were running a special deal.

If you came in dressed like a cow to prove that you are not chicken they would give you a free meal.

The pictures below show us “cowifing” ourselves. We then went to one restaurant location and ate a free meal. After that we decided to see if we could get another one at another location. We did but this time we saved the food for the following day. One meal was plenty to stuff us. Anyway, it was “utterly” divertido! Well, that is all for this volume of the The Family Chronicles of the Crazy Bus Kids. We hope to see you next time.
